Dr. Robert B. Johnson

SKETCH BY W. M. S.

Robert B. Johnson, eldest son of William E. Johnson and Mary Cunningham Brown, was born in Camden, S. C., on the 28th day of June, 1825.

William E. Johnson, his father, was from South Carolina and settled in Camden in 1818, and in 1824 married Mary Cunningham Brown, daughter of Robert Brown and Elizabeth Cunningham Brown. He was prominent in mercantile and banking interests in the city of his adoption, and was in 1845 made President of the Bank of Camden.

Robert B. Johnson was educated in the common schools of Camden. In 1842 he entered the South Carolina College, and is today (June 1st, 1914) the oldest living alumnus of this institution. In 1845 Dr. Johnson married Jane Cunningham McWillie, daughter of William McWillie and Nancy Cunningham McWillie, of Camden. In 1845 he entered the Medical College of the State of South Carolina, at Charleston, and graduated from this institution in 1847, and was in the active practise of his profession for a period of fifty-three years. Immediately upon his graduation Dr. Johnson settled at Liberty Hill, a wealthy village in Kershaw county, and there practised medicine in conjunction with his large planting interests until 1852, when he removed to Camden, where he continued his practise until the beginning of the Civil War.

In 1861 Dr. Johnson assisted in the organization of the Kirkwood Rangers, of which company he was made second lieutenant. This company was assigned to duty in Virginia as a part of the Seventh South Carolina Cavalry Regiment. Upon the recognition of the army he was appointed as aid on the staff of General J. B. Kershaw, in which position he served until he was captured in the early part of 1865 and was paroled.

In 1865 Dr. Johnson returned to Camden and soon begun his preparation to remove to Kirkwood, Miss., where he had a large landed estate. He resumed the practise of his profession in Mis-

Mississippi in conjunction with his planting interest in 1866. In 1900 he retired from active practise and removed to Kosciusko, Miss., where he has since resided.

Since the death of his wife in 1907 he has spent a portion of each winter in Camden with friends and relatives, and has recently taken up his permanent residence in Camden.

Dr. Johnson has recently completed the following genealogy of the McWillie and Cunningham families, to which he has devoted a great deal of his time since his retirement from active professional life.

Dr. Johnson is a gentleman of most remarkable mental vigor. He has all of his life been a student of men and affairs and an extensive reader, and has a wonderful store of information of the events covering a period of the past eighty years. He has also kept up well with the public and political matters of the present day and is familiar with the record of every man of any prominence in the public life at the present time. He has a charming address and is a delightful conversationalist.

1795—William McWillie—1869

SKETCH BY DR. ROBERT B. JOHNSON.

William McWillie, 2d son of Adam McWillie, youngest son of John McWillie (Donald McDonald, of Glenloch, Scotland) and Ann McCullough, was born November 17, 1795, on his father's plantation on Beaver Creek, near Liberty Hill, Kershaw county, S. C., and died March 3d, 1869, at his home, "Kirkwood," Madison county, Mississippi, and is buried in the cemetery of St. Philip's church at same place. I knew him from the beginning of my life—having been born in his house—to the end of his life, and I can fairly write of his personal characteristics. He was an impressive man. Black hair, brown, gentle eyes, ruddy complexion and agreeable, though not what is called a handsome, face—a face indicating repose, gentleness, firmness and behind all power. He was tall—6' 2"—large in limb and body, but rather slow and ungraceful in movement. In short, his whole appearance indicated goodness and power in repose, rather than grace and facile movement. He was the 3d of eleven children born in the Beaver Creek home of his father. His primary education was received in country schools of the neighborhood and completed in the University of South Carolina, at Columbia, from which he was graduated in 1817 with distinction. He entered this institution in 1812, but withdrew in 1813 to join the Regiment of Infantry of which his father was colonel, and served as its adjutant until the end of the War of 1812-14, and then took his place in the college and graduated as stated before. After graduating he commenced the study of law and became one of the most distinguished lawyers and legislators of his time in South Carolina.

In 1838 the Bank of Camden was established, of which he was president until 1845, when he moved to Madison county, Mississippi, where he had large plantations, on which he lived until his death. In South Carolina he was State Senator for several terms and filled with distinction other offices. In Mississippi he became a member of Congress, and Governor in 1859-60. In every position of honor in which he was placed he bore the reputation of being a very able and trustworthy man, always up to the full measure of the other great men of his time in Mississippi. I think Governor McWillie moved to Mississippi with the purpose of enjoying the quiet and comfort of his country home, and the satisfying pursuits of the Southern planter, but yielding to the wishes of others he entered the field of politics, where he was forced to exert his great powers, which he did not like, for he was by nature inclined to take his ease.

His house in Camden, S. C., was the three-story brick building facing south just below the old courthouse, and opposite the old market with the Indian on its steeple. In this house sixteen of his twenty-one children were born, thirteen of them being girls born one after another without a son. His first wife was Nancy Louisa Cunningham, daughter of Joseph Cunningham, of Liberty Hill, S. C., by whom he had seven children. His second wife was Catherine Mary Anderson, daughter of Dr. E. H. Anderson, of Camden, S. C., had fourteen children. While in Camden Governor McWillie's home was known for its elegant hospitality, up to the standard in Camden, which is saying much, for Camden was in that day the seat of a splendid hospitality. In their beautiful country home in Mississippi Governor and Mrs. McWillie displayed the same generous and splendid hospitality which they practised in old Camden. Their "Kirkwood" home was known all over Mississippi as the fountain head—the headquarters of all that was elegant and refined and generous. The ravages of time and a cruel necessity have changed all this. Those who lived in that beautiful home and contributed to make it the source of love and happiness, have passed away, and their home has disappeared from the face of the earth, leaving nothing but a memory—a precious memory—of the things that were.

*Copy of Letter from Abram McWillie to
William McWillie, 1850-1855*

I have not written you for a long time. When I last wrote I was in Scotland searching out our grandfather's history. I have it all. When I wrote I thought I had him, but I was slightly mistaken in the man. It was his cousin. I became acquainted with Mr. Robert Chambers, the editor of Blackwood's Magazine and author of the History of the Rebellion of 1745, and the compiler of the Jacobite papers. I told him my story and he took great interest in it at once and assisted me very much in the discovery. We traced out the young man I then supposed to be the one until we found he had been executed after the Battle of Culloden, but that put us on the right track. At that time I thought that his name was Keith, a young son of the Earle Marshall of Scotland. That was not the case, he was only a grandson through the female line. His real name was Donald McDonald. What misled me from the first was the story that he was only 18 years, when the fact was that he was not at the Battle of Culloden at all. He was certainly young, but not so young as 18. He was out with his Clan in the Rebellion of 1745 and was wounded at the Battle of Clifton, near Carlisle. Upon the retreat of the Clan from England he was left behind at Carlisle with the garrison left at that place and surrendered to the Duke of Cumberland. He was not tried immediately, but was kept in prison a long time until the rebellion was completely suppressed. He had many relations out at the same time, among others Donald McDonald, Chief of Kinloch Moidart; Major Donald McDonald, of Tiendiesh, and Ronald McDonald, younger brother of Kinloch Moidart. Major McDonald, of Tiendiesh, was taken prisoner after the Battle of Culloden. Our grandfather was a captain in the regiment of McDonald, Chief of the Kippoch branch of the Clan, and is so stated in the surrender at Carlisle. He was still a prisoner at Carlisle when his kinsmen were sent there for trial. They were Donald McDonald, Chief of Kinloch Moidart; Major McDonald, of Tiendiesh, and Ronald McDonald. They were all tried together and all found guilty and sentenced to execution. They were executed accordingly, but Captain Donald McDonald, of Glenlochy, although sentenced, was not executed. Our mother had told us that our grandfather had been tried at Carlisle, sentenced but pardoned, but that those of his nearest kin had been executed, and it struck Mr. Chambers and myself that this was the man.

I could find out no more at Carlisle, but with letters from Mr. Chambers to influential men in London I went there to examine the state papers about the time of the rebellion. With a little greasing of the hands in sovereigns I made interest with the old Librarian (an antiquarian), who assisted me in the search. I found the correspondence between Horace Walpole, on the one part, and Sir Alexander McDonald, Lord of the Isles (grandfather's uncle), and McDonald, Chief of Clan Ronald (his great-uncle), on the other part, in which they urged all their influence that Donald McDonald, of Glenloch, should be pardoned. These two chiefs had not been engaged in the rebellion.

I also found a letter from Major McDonald, of Tiendiesh, while under sentence, to Horace Walpole, begging him by their early friendship to spare the life of Donald McDonald, of Glenloch. Horace Walpole and Major McDonald had traveled together on the Continent when they were young men and had kept up a warm friendship thereafter. Horace Walpole consented to spare him on several conditions. One, that he should never return to Scotland; another, that he should not assume the name of McDonald and that he should go into the British Army.

I saw the letter in which he accepted the condition and on comparison it is exactly like the handwriting of grandfather, some of whose letters I had with me and still have. It was compared by several gentlemen who said it was the same. But still further the name of McGillie or McGillie-Aspig is a common family name of the McDonald Clans. It is the contraction of Guillaume, which translated is William. He proposed to take the name of McGillie, but he was not permitted to do so because it was a family name. He then proposed McWillie, which means exactly the same thing, and is the same name. That was agreed to and the same day an order was issued for a suspension of his execution and a commission issued to John McWillie, Gentleman, as Ensign in the British Army. From what we could see we came to the conclusion that he had never been pardoned, but his sentence suspended on these conditions. This might account for his great future silence, but when I see you I can throw a great deal of light on that, too. I merely write a sketch now to satisfy you and that if anything should happen to me then all of my labor may not be lost to the family.

Donald McDonald, of Kinloch Moidart; Major McDonald, of Tiendiesh, and Ronald McDonald were executed at Carlisle as the books of trials says (I have the book—R. B. J.), and their heads stuck upon poles at the north gate.

This Major McDonald, of Tiendeish, was a first cousin of our grandfather and was also Sir Walter Scott's Fergus McIvor. I have the documentary proof of the latter fact. I was in his house, but did not know that he was any kin to me. It has been a renowned family ever since the time of
 For a short sketch of them see notes to the Lords of the Isles by Scott. I can tell you some more when I see you, but this is enough for the present. I have been a good deal this summer in castles and desolated homes of our ancestors. I was at Artornish, their great stronghold. I was in the hall where their grand banquets were held. I took the Lords of the Isles for my guide book and went to the places described so well and so beautifully in the First Canto. I was also in the castle of the Lord of Lorn, where Bruce's brooch was torn from him, and I was on the spot where Calverhouse was killed.

CONCLUSION OF LETTER FROM ABRAM McWILLIE.

Mrs. Ann Van Vacter

Mrs. Ann Van Vacter, of San Antonio, Texas, a granddaughter of Adam McWillie and Ann McCullough, gives the following as "A History of My Grandfather McWillie as I have Heard It."

We have every reason to believe that the family name was McDonald. The Clan and their chiefs were all devoted adherents of the Stuart cause. They distinguished themselves at the Battle of Culloden for their courage and endurance, but not, I regret to say, for their common sense. History says that through the ignorance of a young aide-de-camp the McDonalds were not given the position for which for hundreds of years they had considered themselves entitled. This mistake infuriated the proud and stubborn clansmen to such an extent that no entreaties or commands of their Chieftain would induce them to enter the battle as active participants, nor would they leave the place assigned and they were mowed down by the English Artillery without striking a blow either in their own defense or for the cause of their Prince.

My great-grandfather was taken prisoner at the Battle of Culloden and with many other leaders and chieftains of the Stuart cause was condemned to be beheaded, but on account of his youth he was pardoned on condition that he would change his name and enter the British Army. He accepted the terms offered, taking the name of John McWillie and registered as gentleman, showing that he belonged to the upper class. He was placed on a man of war and was not to be allowed to land on English soil for seven years. After five years of hard service in many parts of the world he was seriously wounded and sent back to England. After he recovered, having shown himself faithful to his oath of allegiance to the House of Hanover, he was allowed to go to the Highlands of Scotland and raise a company among his old clansmen. Of this company he was made captain. This fact, if no other, would show that he was of high degree in his Clan.

I think it was at this time in Scotland that he was married to Margaret Davidson, our great-grandmother. She was an orphan and a ward of General Churchill, who was at that time Governor of Edinburgh Castle. So our great-grandparents were married in the famous old Castle of Edinburgh. General Churchill was a brother of the famous John Churchill, Duke of Marlborough, and our great-grandmother was a kinswoman of the Churchills. She had other relatives occupying distinguished positions in England.

General Agnew, who was killed in the Battle of Germantown during the Revolution, was her cousin. Admiral Agnew was also a kinsman. The wife of the famous Blannehasset was Margaret Agnew and a niece of the Admiral, so she must have been a kinswoman of great-grandmother. General Churchill's only daughter, Henrietta, was a friend and companion of our great-grandmother. She married Colonel Stewart, a cousin of our great-grandfather.

Colonel Stewart commanded a Regiment of Highlanders in the English Army. He was the famous Colonel Stewart who was killed in the Battle of Guilford Courthouse in the Revolutionary War. Great-grandfather was in the Battle of Camden, S. C., and was wounded and had to be sent home.

After the Revolutionary War he was stationed for a greater part of the time at a military post in Ireland. He bought or leased the estate called "Osier Hill" near where he was stationed. The estate the eldest son, James, inherited at the death of his father.

Our great-grandparents had three children—James, Henrietta and Adam, the youngest, our grandfather. Henrietta was named for Henrietta Churchill and was said to be a very beautiful woman. She married Mr. Reed, a clergyman. They had no children. I know but little of grandfather's elder brother's family.

Now I will tell you something of the history of our grandmother's family. Her father was James McCullough and her mother was Annie Beall. They lived in Kershaw District, South Carolina. Her father was a Royalist but took no active part in the war. His older brother was killed by one of Marion's men, one of his own neighbors, I have heard shot him in the back as he was entering his own door and fell dead among his own family.

Grandmother's father was married twice. I do not remember to have heard the maiden name of his second wife. I know he had other children. At the close of the war he decided to go to Ireland, as that was the home of his ancestors. After the death of her mother, which event occurred when grandmother was very young, she was taken by her maternal grandmother, who kept her until her death, which occurred just before Grandfather McCullough's removal to Ireland. Of course, he took grandmother with him. He seems to have been a man of considerable wealth and to have lived in good style. After remaining in Ireland a few years he became very much dissatisfied, and as he would not return to the United States he went to Canada, where he lived to be a very old man. A half sister of grandmother visited in South Carolina—a Mrs. Thompson. She had two very beautiful daughters. They moved to Georgia and were successful there. I remember a cousin of grandmother's, a Mr. William Johnson, who lived on the Wateree River near some falls—Great Falls now. Grandmother named her son William for this cousin, who he was said to very strikingly resemble. Grandmother's son, William, and her daughter, Tirzah, were said to be more like their mother than any of the other children. The other children were blue-eyed and light-haired—Scotch lads and lassies. Aunt Tirzah was known as the beautiful Miss McWillie. When a young lady grandmother was a very handsome woman with brown eyes and auburn hair. I remember she was especially proud of her beautiful hands and feet and the fact that she could span her ankle with one hand. Her ears were particularly beautiful. To return to Aunt Tirzah. Uncle Williamson was in love with her when she was a school girl in Columbia, S. C., and he was a college student. He addressed her several times, but was rejected. At length in despair he went to Florida and joined General Jackson's Army. He remained away about three years and distinguished himself by his gallantry. He returned a colonel, and having won his spurs at length succeeded in winning his bride. To return to Mr. William Johnson. He had only two children, two daughters, who were remarkable for their beauty. Elizabeth, or Betty as she was called, married an Englishman, a Mr. Miles, of Charleston, S. C. She was said to have made a fine match. Her husband lived only a few years and left her with one son and two daughters. After several years she married Mr. Massey. Charlotte Johnson also married a Mr. Massey. Grandmother had relatives in the State of New York named Brady, said to be well-to-do people.

Now I will return to grandfather and grandmother and give you as much of their history as I can remember. Grandfather fell very much in love with grandmother from the first meeting, but his father was very much opposed to his marrying an American girl. He was not at all pleased with what he had seen of the United States and did not wish his son to make this country his home when he had fought against its liberty. Grandfather was determined to marry the lady of his choice and to come to the United States. He saw no opening for him as a younger son. His father would not allow him to go into the English Army, although his family connection was influential and offered to get him a commission. His father said no son of his should ever wear a red coat. Finding that grandfather could not be turned from his purpose his father consented to the marriage. They remained in Ireland after they were married. Their first child, Aunt Sallie, was born in Ireland. His father was so much opposed to his going to the United States that he gave him only a sufficient amount of money to take them to America and bring them back to Ireland, as he was fully impressed with the idea that they would not be pleased and after a short experience would return to the mother country. In this he proved mistaken. Grandmother's father gave her all of his land, which was an extensive tract in Kershaw District, S. C. There they established their home. Grandfather had studied civil engineering and surveying and commenced work at once on his own land. This gave him a start. Civil engineers and surveyors were muchly needed in this country, so grandfather secured a large patronage. In ten or twelve years he had made quite a comfortable fortune. He had said when leaving Ireland that he would not write until he was in independent circumstances. When he wrote answer came from his brother telling him that his father and mother were both dead and that his father left him nothing in his will. This grandfather did not believe, as he was his father's favorite child. So ended his connection with the elder branch of his family. He raised a regiment in the War of 1812 of which he was colonel. His son, William, was then a student in the South Carolina College and begged his father to let him go with him. This was refused but his son was determined to have his own way, and in a short time left college and joined his father and remained with him until the end of the war as Adjutant of the Regiment. Grandfather said he owed all of his success in life to his good wife; that she was the best and truest of women. They had eleven children. Sarah was born in Ireland, married William B. Stover, and moved to Alabama when quite young. John married Alice Woodward nee Williamson. She was a sister of Uncle Williamson. They had three children—Adam, John and Annie. James died in infancy. William first married Nancy Cunningham, second wife Katherine Anderson. Margaret Davidson, my mother, married first Dr. John Mackey. As my father was a member of my family for only four or five years (he died before he was 30) I have thought but few of the family could know anything of him or his history and that it might be somewhat interesting to you (Dr. R. B. Johnson). Dr. John Mackey was of Scotch-Irish parentage and was brought up in Londonderry. His father was quite well off and had him well educated. He received his medical education at University of Glasgow in Scotland, at that time considered one of the best in the world. I think at the time my father was at the University the celebrated Dr. Abercrombie was one of the professors. I have certificates that were given to him as a student for his excellence in different branches of his course of study. I regret that many of his papers were lost. I have been told that in many branches of medicine he was far in advance of a great majority of the American physicians at that time. Grandfather met him in Charleston soon after his (my father's) arrival in the United States and invited him to visit him. In this way he met my mother. He was said to have been very handsome and a remarkably attractive man and was greatly liked and admired by all of my mother's family. They had only two children—my brother Adam and myself. My mother's second husband was Dr. William McCullough. They had four children—Sarah, William, James and Margaret. James, grandfather's fifth son, died only a few months before he was to graduate. He was said to have been the most talented member of the family. Albert died when about twenty years of age. George died at the age of five or six. Adam married a Miss DuBose and died a few months after he was married. He was quite young, not more than of age. Abram, the youngest, married Jane Andrews. He died in New Orleans about the close of the Confederate War. Had no children.

The McWillies buried at the old Beaver Creek church, in the upper part of Kershaw county, S. C., are Col. Adam McWillie, my grandfather; James, an infant; Albert, not quite of age; James D., about twenty-one; George, five or six; Adam, quite a young man; Dr. John Mackey, Nancy Cunningham McWillie and her infant daughter, Margaret Jane.

CONCLUSION OF MRS. VAN VACTER'S LETTER.

Inscriptions on Monuments

Inscription on John McWillie's monument at Frogdoo, County Armagh, Ireland:

John McWillie, of Newton-Hamilton. Died January 18, 1804,
Age 88.

From this it appears that he was born 1716; that he was 30 years old when the Battle of Culloden was fought in 1746. Assuming that his son James, who was born in 1759, was his first child, he was probably married to Margaret Davidson in 1758, or when he was 42 years old, or twelve years after his capture in the War of the Rebellion of 1745. There is no authentic record of his service in the British Army until 1781, when, by the terms of a commission issued to him over the signature of George III, he was named Ensign in the "Royal Irish Battalion of Foot," and again he is authentically heard from in 1783 at the conclusion of the War of the Revolution, when, in a commission issued from the headquarters of the British Army in New York city, he is named as Ensign in the "Royal Irish Battalion of Foot," which seems to be the same command as the first named.

There are traditional accounts of his services in the British Army, as, for instance, his being wounded in the Battle of Guilford Courthouse and at the Battle of Camden in 1780. At these dates he was 64 or 65 years of age, too old for active service, and at the time of the last commission, in 1783, he was 67 years of age.

I have seen and examined both of these commissions. The first was sent to me from Ireland for perusal and the last is in the possession of Mr. Thomas A. McWillie, of Jackson, Miss. It is altogether probable that John McWillie did service in the British Army as a soldier, but there is no evidence of the fact except the commissions referred to.

With the assistance of Dr. James Browne, who was one of the Irish McWillies, I have endeavored to clear up the history of John McWillie, but the result is meager and unsatisfactory, and there is an evident reluctance on their part to investigate, especially with reference to his marriage or marriages. Dr. Browne and his relatives in Ireland say that John McWillie's wife was Henrietta Arabella Churchill. Mrs. Adam McWillie, wife of Col. Adam Mc-

Willie, the second son of John McWillie, whom she married in Ireland, and whose family she knew personally, states that John McWillie married Margaret Davidson, who was the mother of her husband. She is correct as to this, but perhaps he had two wives and Henrietta Churchill was one of them.

The inscription on James McWillie's monument at Frogdoo, Ireland, is:

James McWillie, of Newton-Hamilton. Died December 18, 1808,
Age 48.

(Son of John McWillie 1st.)

NOTE.—James McWillie and his sister, Lizzie McWillie Albin, are the only McWillies living now in Ireland. They live at Lisnagunion, County Armagh, Ireland. James and Lizzie, above noted, are children of John McWillie, son of James McWillie, eldest son of John McWillie, Donald McDonald, of Glenlochy, and are now living, in the year 1914, at the place above named. The last information I received from Ireland is a letter from Mrs. Elizabeth Jane Albin, as follows:

“9th Feby., 1914.

“DR. R. B. JOHNSON.

“Dear Cousin: Your very welcome letter just received. We are both delighted to have a letter from you, as it is such a while since we heard from any of our friends in that country. So long as Dr. J. McWillie F. Browne lived he wrote us such nice letters, and has mentioned your name many times as his Cousin Jenny's good husband and of your writing out a record of the McWillie family and wished me to tell him of what I heard from our Aunt Albin. I replied, saying she never told me much of the family history, therefore, anything I knew was what father told us. I presume Dr. Browne told you more than I possibly could do. I can give you a record of father's family, eight children in all: The oldest, Florence, died at the age of 20 years. William 18. Father intended him for a clergyman, he had all the languages learned ready for college when he took his death illness; lasted six months. Sister Mary, the 3d, married William Johnston; they went to Canada, did very well; they are both dead; left three of a family who are married. 4th, Henrietta married David McKee; they went to the United States, Ellenburg, Washington. She had four sons and one daughter to McKee; he died. By a second husband a son and daughter. We believe them to be all in comfortable circumstances. 5th, Hannah married Mr. J. Gilmore; they had one son and two daughters; are all married and living in town named Kingscourt, nine miles from here. Then, myself, Elizabeth Jane I was baptized, and for a short name they called me Lizzie. I was married three months when father died. John McWillie died 20th December, 1879; also mother, his wife, Rebecca McWillie, died 27th January, 1886. My brother James never married, he has a comfortable home and I have come to reside with him and are very happy together. I am over 70 and he is two years younger. Uncle William McWillie has passed away long since and his son James is over twenty years dead, so that there are none of the name in Ireland only my brother. Judging from your handwriting and nice letters we both say you are a grand old man, and join in much love to you and family.

“Yours very affectionately,

“E. JANE ALBIN.

“P. S. I have yet to tell you of our youngest sister, Maggie. She was a dear sweet girl, every one loved her. She lived to be 38 years old, she is now eleven years dead. I have seen many deaths, and of them all, hers hurt me most. Kindly write again soon, as we would like to know more of the McWillies in Mississippi.

“Hoping this will find you in the same good health as when you wrote, also your family, with much love to all,

“Ever yours,

INSCRIPTIONS ON MONUMENTS IN MISSISSIPPI AND SOUTH CAROLINA

Ann McCullough McWillie, wife of Col. Adam McWillie, is buried at the old Greenwood Presbyterian Church, near Kirkwood, Madison county, Mississippi.

Born December 18th, 1768.

Married, 1787.

Died October 6th, 1844.

INSCRIPTION.

She was a good and loving wife, a good mother and Christian, and her two children, by whom this stone was dedicated to her memory, owe her an everlasting debt of gratitude.

Inscription on monument in the McWillie enclosure in the old Beaver Creek Cemetery in Kershaw county, S. C.:

“Sacred to the memory of Colonel Adam McWillie, who departed this life on the 25th of April, 1827, in the 61st year of his age. He was a native of Ireland, but early in life removed to this neighborhood, where he continued to reside until his death. In his character was united that open frankness and generous hospitality alike characteristic of his native country and this of his adoption. He was exemplary in all his relations of life. A kind husband and affectionate father, a good neighbor, a friend of those in need, a patriotic citizen and an honest man. He left a wife and seven children to lament this bereavement.”

“Sacred to the memory of George Sarsfield McWillie, who departed this life on the 18th of October, 1815, age 5 years and 7 months. Jesus suffer little children to come unto Me, for of such is the Kingdom of Heaven.”

“Sacred to the memory of Albert McWillie, who departed this life on the 11th of September, 1822, in the 23d year of his age.

“Youth tho’ yet no losses grieve you,
Gay in heart and manly grace,
Let not cloudless skies deceive you,
Summer gives to Autumn place.”

“Sacred to the memory of James Davidson McWillie. Born, 1804. Died 10-3-1823. 19.

Inscription on the monument in the McWillie enclosure in the old Beaver Creek Church, Kershaw county, S. C.:

Sacred to the memory of Adam McWillie, Jr., who departed this life on the 21st of October, 1829, in the 25th year of his age. “His friends supposed him to be but upon the threshold of life, and he no doubt himself heard and believed the whisperings of fancy when she told him of happiness and usefulness and length of days, but the destroyer came. Death has palsied his useful strength. We look for him, but the places that have known him know him no more. Here are entombed those aspiring hopes. That erect form and those warm and generous. Reader, if you are young, live on the uncertainty of life, if old the certainty of death. Be ever ready to meet thy God, whose ways are past finding out."

Sacred to the memory of Nancy Louisa McWillie, wife of William McWillie, Esquire, who died on the 6th of April, 1827, in the 29th year of her age. This stone may be an erection of affection, but cannot record the many virtues on which that affection was founded. While on earth they were the delight of her family and friends, now they are acknowledged and registered on the Lamb's Book of Life. The tears of all who knew her have mixed with those of the parents, the husband and the orphan.

"She fell not like the flower autumnal,
Lapsing in an age mature,
But like a Lily of the vernal morn
She bloomed awhile and faded ere 'twas morn."

Such are the mysterious calls of Providence.

Inscriptions on the monuments in the McWillie enclosures in the old Beaver Creek Cemetery, Kershaw county, S. C.:

Sacred to the memory of Dr. John Mackey, who departed this life on the 31st of January, 1826, in the 31st year of his age.

"In him were united those moral and intellectual qualities best calculated to gain the love and respect of all who knew him. His was a heart overflowing with the milch of human kindness. Ever ready to minister to those requesting his personal or professional services. He was an Irishman by birth and procured his education in Glasgow. He died in the morning of his usefulness, leaving a wife and two children to lament his untimely death."

Sacred to the memory of Margaret Jane, daughter of William and Nancy McWillie, who died November 15th, 1824, aged 15 months and 21 days.

"No taint of earth, no thought of sin
E'er dwelt her stainless breast within,
And God hath laid her down to sleep
Like a pure pearl below the deep."

The McWillie enclosures in the Old Beaver Creek Church Cemetery, Kershaw county, S. C., was erected and paid for by the children of Nancy Louisa McWillie about 1852. It is built of hewn granite 30x40 feet. It was built under the direction of William M. Shannon, Sr., at a cost of $250.00 or $300.00. The old Beaver Creek Church in which the old McWillies worshipped disappeared many years ago.

Genealogy
of the Cunningham Family

1725—Arthur Cunningham—1828

A PERSONAL SKETCH BY DR. ROBERT B. JOHNSON.

It is supposed that Arthur Cunningham with his family emigrated to America from the north of Ireland after the War of the American Revolution and settled on Beaver Creek, Kershaw county, S. C., where he lived and died in 1828, more than 100 years of age, and is buried with his two wives in the old Summer-ville burying ground near Liberty Hill, Kershaw county, S. C. I cannot say that I remember him, though I might do so if a child of three years old can remember those about him. The testimony of those who knew him gave me the impression of a man of vigorous personality, mental and physical, with some rather quaint peculiarities. His vigor of body is shown by his habit of riding to Camden, twenty miles from his home—always riding in a gallop—and back again on the same day, and this he continued to do, when his business required it, until he was past 80 years of age. That he retained his virility to a great age may be taken for granted when it is stated that he married the second time when he was more than 80 years old, and lived long enough to see a child by this marriage a grown woman. Some idea of his personal appearance may be gotten from what Governor McWillie told me many times, that I resembled my great-great-grandfather, Arthur. Many sayings of his, preserved by tradition in his family, indicate his force of expression, but I cannot recall them. I remember his measuring up the characteristics of his sons, James, Robert and Joseph: “James drinks all, Robin spends all, but Joe saves all.” This was true, as all know, of Joseph, because he became the richest man in South Carolina, his estate at his death being valued at one million of dollars—all made from the ground, for he never was anything but a farmer. The family records of Arthur Cunningham were lost by fire before he emigrated to America, but from satisfactory evidence, Governor William McWillie, Dr. Bush and others believed him to be about 103 years old—1725-1828. He was Irish, as now called Scotch-Irish. Presbyterian, of course. All the Cunninghams, of whom I have known many descended from him, were Presbyterians, or nearly all. His occupation in Ireland was that of a weaver and lessee, or renter, or crofter, so called. It appears to have been the right of the landlord to call on his tenants to assist in gathering his own crop, whether it suited his tenants or not. A compliance with this demand caused his tenant, Arthur Cunningham, to lose his own crop, which so outraged his sense of justice that he came to his wife, and stating the case, said: "Jennie, there must be a better country than this and if you are willing we will go to it." She consented, and with their children, whom I am inclined to think were born in Ireland, left their native country and came to America, settling first on Sanders' Creek and finally on Beaver Creek in the upper part of Kershaw county, S. C., where he lived until his death. The correct inference seems to be that he came to America after the war of 1776, bringing some of his children, maybe all of them, with him. From certain facts I think a brother of Arthur Cunningham came to America at the same time, landing at Charleston and settling in Edgefield county, S. C., near Ninety Six, in that county. I have never known his name or anything else of him, but one of his daughters, Jane, married her first cousin, Joseph Cunningham, son of Arthur. A sister of Jane married Dr. Montgomery, who lived on the Wateree River a few miles northwest of Liberty Hill, and the brother of these sisters, Joseph Cunningham, married his second cousin, Mary Curry, daughter of Jane Cunningham, who was a daughter of Arthur Cunningham. These Cunninghams, brother and sisters, came from Edgefield county, S. C., and they were first cousins of Arthur Cunningham's children, so they were the children of Arthur Cunningham's brother who settled in Edgefield county. The children of Arthur Cunningham of whom I knew were Elizabeth, my grandmother; Jane (Aunt Jennie Curry as she was called in the family); James, who settled in Alabama; Joseph, who lived at Liberty Hill, and Robert, whose home was on Cedar Creek, Lancaster, S. C. I have in this book an authentic record of Arthur Cunningham's descendants. They number at this time (1914), with some allowance for recent additions, about 2,000 persons. I think I have known personally fully half of them, and from reliable sources have gotten my record of the others.
